Our each device vehicle's computer through our patented technology - measuring location, mileage, mpg, fuel usage, CO2, driver behaviour, diagnostics and more.

You can access this information through automatic reports or a live map view, from your office computer or your smartphone. A few simple clicks will let you pinpoint every vehicle on the same map, identify fuel waste, improve driver performance and safety, and automate tasks like timesheets and mileage claims.

Remember you need employees to keep your business running. By introducing a GPS fleet tracking system, they may feel an invasion of privacy on your behalf. Realistically, if you deal with the situation properly, the majority of your drivers will go with your new idea but having an open discussion is key.

Give them a reason to like the tracking system. An example could be introducing a rewards system. It is key that you get them on your side and tell them about the improvements the tracking system will give them and the business.
